Gnocchi di Patate

YIELD: 4 TO 8 SERVINGS

INGREDIENTS

- 454g (1 pound, about two medium-sized) baking potatoes, preferably Russet
 - 120g (1 cup) King Arthur Unbleached All-Purpose Flour
 - 28g (¼ cup) Parmigiano-Reggiano cheese, freshly grated
 - 2 egg yolks
 - ½ teaspoon salt
 - fresh grated nutmeg, to taste

DIRECTIONS

1. Bake the potatoes in a 425°F oven for 45-60 minutes, or until soft. The weight given in the recipe is with skins on, prior to baking. The amount after baking will vary slightly. While warm, press the potato flesh through a ricer or use a potato masher.
2. Spread the potatoes in a mound on a work surface, and create a well in the center. Put the cheese, eggs, salt and nutmeg in the well, and sift about ¾ of the flour on top. Using two fingers or a fork, pull the potato and flour into the center and mix with the cheese and the eggs. Stop as soon as the potato has absorbed all of the ingredients and comes together in a smooth ball. Adjust texture with remaining flour only if needed.
3. Cover with plastic wrap and allow to rest at room temperature for 30 minutes.
4. Sprinkle your hands with a bit of flour. Taking a small portion of dough in your hands, roll out the mixture using your palms and form a cylinder the length and thickness of a finger. Cut into ¾" pieces and then roll each piece along the tines of a fork to lightly indent (this helps "trap" the sauce). Repeat with the remaining dough. Place the gnocchi on a tray or plate, dusted with flour. Cover lightly and chill until ready to cook. Bring a large pot of salted water to a boil. Reduce the heat to maintain a slow boil. Add the gnocchi and cook until they float, then continue to cook one more minute. Use a slotted spoon to drain and then serve as desired.
